

HOLLYWOOD MOMS

Molly's latest obsessions: Camila Cabello's "Havana" and Elmo!

Ali's Dream Nursery

There's still so much to do. As her son's May due date approaches, Ali Fedotowsky needs a car seat, a stroller and, oh, a name. "We cannot come up with one!" the former Bachelorette star, 33, says of the struggle she and her husband, radio host Kevin Manno, 34, face. "I feel like I blinked and this pregnancy flew by." Thankfully, the mom of Molly, 21 months, has one major task checked off: the nursery. "I like to get things done in advance, so having that finished is huge," the Ali Luvs blogger tells Us. "I wanted something classic. Yes, it's a nursery, but I didn't want it to feel too baby-ish. It's something he can grow into." She opens up about her great expectation.

You're in the home stretch! How are you feeling?
Massively pregnant! This little guy has been measuring about five weeks big every single time I go to the doctor. I've been so big for so long that it's caused physical strain on my body. And, of course, I'm caring for a one-and-a-half-year-old. I'm exhausted!

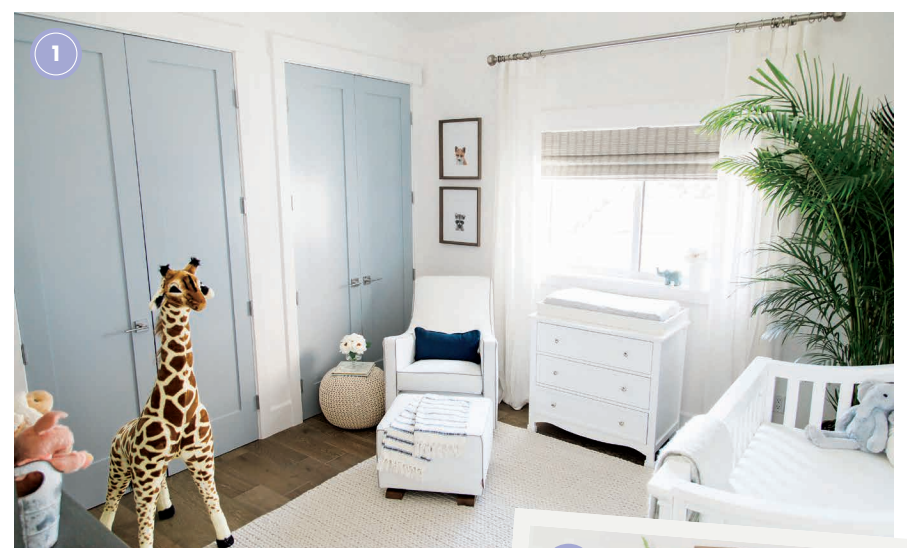

Have you been able to work out?
Molly has pretty much been my only workout since she was born. Being a parent is the hardest workout there is, in my opinion. I can't lie down on the couch for an hour and binge-watch my favorite show. But I've definitely gained more weight this pregnancy, which is fine. I'm like, "Give me an extra piece of cake!"

What are your cravings?
Everything sugar! I always want a sundae at the end of the day. I had Kevin go to the store and get ice cream, hot fudge, whipped cream and little candies to sprinkle on top. My doctor told me to cut back. [laughs]

What excites you most about a son?
Molly is a daddy's girl and everyone I talk to says sons are mama's boys. I'm looking forward to that mother-son bond! I am nervous about how much energy boys have, though. My girlfriends have sons and they'll come over and be jumping off walls. I hope Molly's sweetness rubs off on him.

How have you prepped her for this big change?
We try to teach her through books and little dolls. We tell her the baby is going to come out of mommy's belly. At the end of the day, she is only 21 months old, so she doesn't really get it. But, she hugs and kisses my belly. She's going to be the best big sister because she's so loving!

How has Kevin been doting on you?
Kevin is what my friends like to call a unicorn. Men like him don't exist. Because I've been so uncomfortable, he's taken on 90 percent of the parenting. I'm almost embarrassed to admit that 1 [laughs]. I feel like someone needs to come give him a break!

How do you and Kevin sneak in alone time together?
We don't! To be honest, parenting takes a toll on your relationship. Since Molly was born, we have probably been on less than five dates. And by that I mean, his brother comes over, we go to dinner and we're home by 7 p.m. We love each other and we're best friends, but we're in full-on parent mode. After this baby comes, we're definitely going to make that a priority.

Biggest challenge about having two under 2?
When I need a break, I can just say, "Kevin, you take Molly." Soon, there will be two of us and two of them. I'm worried about finding time for me. Right now, one percent of my time is for me. I'm either working or I'm with Molly. How am I going to make room for this baby? That's my fear. But people say two is easier because they keep each other occupied. Whether that's true, I'll find out!

Do you want more kids?
No! [laughs] We've got a boy, we've got a girl. We are good to go. In a perfect fantasy world, it would be great to have a bigger family. Will another child happen? I can't say. There could be an oops moment, you never know!

2 Mom notes the Evolur case (the brand also made the crib) holds books from Molly's collection of "thousands." 3. Muses Fedotowsky, "Boys are harder to decorate for."